Grand Four-Reel Feature.

With fair weather amusement lovers will be out in great crowds this coming week after so many gloomy days, and the theatres of Bryan will be prepared to entertain them with something new each day.

At the Dixie.

The motion pictures bring their daily message of consolation to all who are unduly burdened. Little mothers, lonesome men and women, the drudges of the household, the workman, the office man, the merchant, the professional man and people in all walks of life are the constant patrons of the "movies." In this age of service from man to man the thought of pleasing so deserving an audience ought to prove a source of perpetual inspiration, and judging from the tremendous crowds which have attended the Dixie during the past year, and especially the past week, the efforts of the management of this popular theatre have been abundantly rewarded. The programs this week have been usually good, and for the coming week some rare treats are promised. Among others on the bill for tonight will be the "only" John Bunny in a screaming comedy, "The Golf Game and the Bonnet," and in addition to this there will be Blanche Sweet in "Her Wedding Bell," Biograph drama; Mona Darkfeather in "Her Indian Brother," Kalem drama; Lea Errol in "His Sister," Selig drama; and a beautiful Lubin drama, "The Doctor's Romance."

On Monday Kathlyn Williams will appear in "The Unwelcome Throne," a strong three-reel picture, being the first of the Kathlyn series of adventures; Irene Boyle in a fine Kalem two-reel, offering "A Modern Jekyll and Hyde;" Vivian Pates in "The Sneak-thief," a Pathe, and Benjamin Wilson in the second of the "Clegg" series, "The Mystery of the Dover Express," now running in the Short Stories Magazine.

Tuesday's program will include beautiful Alice Joyce and Tom Moore in "An Unseen Terror," two-reel Kalem Feature; "Before the Last Leaves Fall," a beautiful Lubin drama; "When Love Is Young," Essanay, with Eleanor Kahn; "The Inspector's Story," another grand Lubin two-reel feature, and Madeline West in a pretty Pathe drama, "By the Two Oak Trees."

Wednesday brings a powerful Pathe American two-reel feature, "When Strong Wills Clash;" a beautiful Vitagraph drama, "The Secret of the Bulb," with a new star (Loyola O'Connor) featured; "Andy Gets a Job," a good Edison comedy; Maurice Costello in a grand Vitagraph drama, "The Education of Aunt Georgia;" "Pathe's Weekly No. 80," and Adele Lane in a pretty Selig drama, "Pathe's Day."

Thursday, Marc MacDermot and Mirim Nesbitt will be seen in "The Antique Brooch," a very pretty Edison two-reel feature; Ruth Stonehouse in an Essanay drama, "The Ghost of Self;" Ruth Roland in a dandy Kalem comedy, "Bill's Board Bill;" the Essanay screaming two-reel comedy, "The Awakening at Snakeville," and William Duncan in "Good Resolutions," a grand Selig drama.

Ilan Walker, Wallie Van and a number of Vitagraph stars; "A Corner in Popularity," Lubin comedy; Alma Russell in "The Broken Heart," a fine Selig drama; Mildred Oakes, Irving Cummings, Jack Standing and Pearl Sinclair in a great two-reel Pathe feature, "The Resurrection," and Harry Carey and Claire McDowell in a beautiful Biograph drama, "The Abandoned Well."

Saturday, Thomas Santschi and Adele Lang in a Selig comedy scream, "At Cross Purposes;" Grace Lewis and Lionel Barrymore in "A Motorcycle Elopement;" a Biograph comedy, "Skelly's Skeleton;" Mona Darkfeather in a strong Kalem drama, "A Dream of the Wild;" Romaine Fielding in a Lubin Western drama, "The Circle's End;" John Bunny and Lillian Walker in a good comedy, "The Misadventure of a Mighty Monarch;" Mabel Trunnelle in a pretty Edison drama, "The Girl in the Middy," and everybody's favorite, G. M. Anderson, assisted by Marguerite Clayton in "The Redemption of Bronco Billy." In addition to these there will be one or more famous player features, of which announcement will be made later. With this grand list of attractions, the Dixie should play to capacity business during the coming weeks and there appears to be subjects and favorites to please all.

At the Crystal.

There will be a big program every day next week at the Crystal theatre. Monday, Warner's Features (Inc.) present "The Accusing Skeleton," a
